New opportunities for investors in the West Coast

New opportunities are emerging in specific sectors of the West Coast region. This trend is being driven by a combination of factors, including a influx of investment, improved infrastructure, and the development of new industries. These opportunities offer investors a range of options, from traditional sectors such as agriculture and mining, to emerging industries such as renewable energy and technology.

Investors are encouraged to explore the West Coast's diverse range of investment opportunities. The region offers a unique combination of natural beauty, cultural diversity, and economic potential, making it an attractive destination for investors.

Turbocharging the regional economy

A new trade route for the City of Ekurhuleni is expected to boost economic growth in the region. The route, which is set to open in the next few months, will connect Ekurhuleni to other major cities in South Africa and beyond. The new route will facilitate the movement of goods and people, boosting trade and investment opportunities.

The new trade route is part of a broader strategy to improve transportation infrastructure in the region. This includes the expansion of existing roads and the construction of new infrastructure projects.

A city so good you'll want to invest in it

The City of Ekurhuleni is home to OR Tambo International Airport, Africa's busiest airport on the continent. The city is also considered the manufacturing hub of the country, which boasts significant logistics corridors along the R21 highway and an extensive transport network across rail and air.

Dear Christoff,

Trust that you are well. I saw your request for funders re Abalone. I am part of BRICS (Brazil Russia India China South Africa) forum.

We have a major investor in China whom we are working with in regards to fish farming in South Africa. The main target being Abalone for exports into China.

They are looking at investing in Abalone farming. Please advise what is the procedure to take this forward?

Kind Regards
